

Voidbound: Signal Lost

By Delaney O'Kray-Murphy
Assignment 1

Voidbound places players as the sole survivor awakening from cryostasis aboard the USV Aethelgard, a kilometer-long research vessel drifting through the Kuiper Belt. With no memory of the evacuation and ship systems failing, players must navigate the psychological and physical deterioration of isolation while piecing together the crew's fate.

The Characters

Star Wars
Galactic Empire
Torpedo Sphere Class Assault Ship
1900 meters

Star Wars
New Republic
Nebula-class Star Destroyer
1040 meters

Star Wars
Galactic Republic
Valor-Class Warship
500 meters

Star Wars
Galactic Republic
Argiens-Class Light Cruiser
150 meters (approximate)

Star Wars
Galactic Republic
Consular-Class Cruiser
115 meters

Star Wars
New Republic
Republic-class Star Destroyer
1250 meters

Star Wars
Galactic Republic
Intimidator-Class Cruiser
600 meters

Star Wars
Rebel Alliance/New Republic
Mediator-Class Star Dreadnaught
8500 meters

Star Wars
Rebel Alliance
Mon Calamari Frigate
880 meters

Star Wars
New Republic
MC90-Class Star Cruiser
1255 meters

Star Wars
New Republic
Foray-Class Blockade Runner
155 meters

Star Wars
New Republic
Viscount-Class Star Dreadnaught
17000 meters

Homeworld
Talidan
Skall Tel-Class Destroyer
234 meters

Homeworld
Talidan
Saarkin-cho Class Carrier
503 meters (approximate)

Homeworld
Talidan
Qswar-Jet Class Heavy Cruiser
430 meters (approximate)

Homeworld
Talidan
Sajuvik-Cor Class Ion Cannon Frigate
120 meters (approximate)

Homeworld
Kushan
Pardition-class Missile Destroyer
288 meters (approximate)

Homeworld
Kushan
Revelation-Class Destroyer
310 meters (approximate)

Homeworld
Higarans
Higarans Battlecruiser
885 meters

Homeworld
Higarans
Higarans Destroyer
500 meters (approximate)

Homeworld
Turanic Raiders
Dagger-Class Ion Cannon Frigate
134 meters (approximate)

Homeworld
Turanic Raiders
Rancor-Class Carrier
745 meters (approximate)

Homeworld
Progenitors
Sajuvik System Crusher
4500 meters (approximate)

Star Trek
Kirogen
Venatic Class
600 meters (approximate)

Star Trek
Unknown

Star Trek

Homeworld
Vaygr
Vaygr Carrier
600 meters (approximate)

Homeworld
Vaygr
Vaygr Battlecruiser
500 meters (approximate)

Homeworld
Vaygr
Assault Frigate
150 meters (approximate)

Star Wars
Rebel Alliance
Corellian Destroyer
1187 meters

Star Wars
Rebel Alliance
Corellian Corvette
151 meters

Star Wars
Rebel Alliance
Swartk-class Battleship
3661 meters

Star Wars
Rebel Alliance
Dauntless-Class Heavy Cruiser
1200 meters

Star Wars
Rebel Alliance
MC80a Star Cruiser
1300 meters

Homeworld
Vaygr
Vaygr Heavy Missile Frigate
120 meters (approximate)

Star Wars
Imperial Remnant
Turpedent-class Star Destroyer
1600 meters approx.

Star Wars
Galactic Empire/Corporate Sector Authority
Invincible Class Dreadnaught
2011 meters

Star Wars
Galactic Republic
Hammerhead-Class Cruiser
315 meters

Star Wars
New Republic
Viscount Prototype Cruiser
3000 meters

Player Character/ Protagonists

Awake from Cryosleep

- You wake up from cryostasis 50 years ahead of schedule.
 - With amnesia from cryo sickness, the player has no memory of why they are there
 - With only a flashlight at your disposal, you venture into the darkness to find out the truth
-

Antagonists

Choose-your-own villain

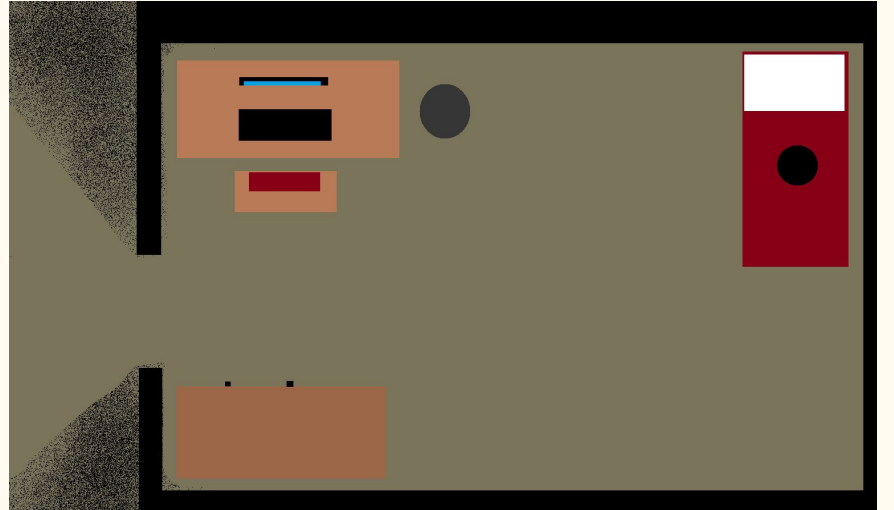

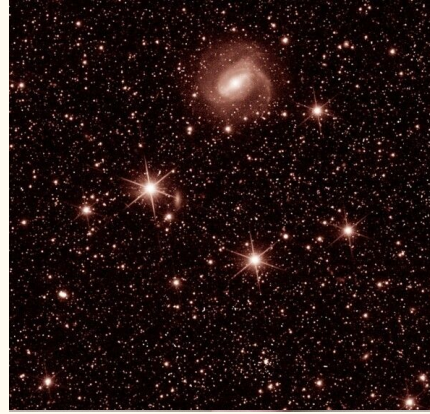

- There is no single “villain” roaming the halls, but rather the evidence of six different catastrophes
- The player constructs the antagonist through their investigation, and commits the player to one of these paths
- Plague, Sentient AI, Crew Insanity, Simulation, Space Debris, Time Loop
- Largely story-driven through ship’s logs, conversational recordings of events

The World

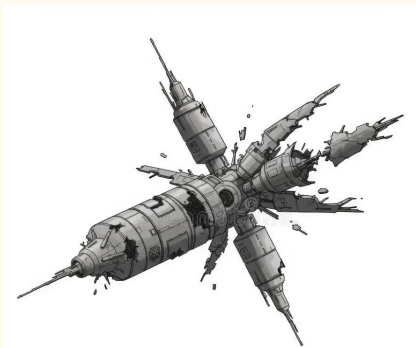

Story and World

1. You wake up from cryostasis midway on an interstellar voyage to find new colonies for life
2. Ship's logs tell the stories of the maintenance crew from the beginning of the voyage to its current adrift status
3. You must navigate the ship and maintain the systems in order to ensure your survival and the survival of any remaining passengers

Story Progression

1. Red lights, thin air, sirens blaring, you wake up disoriented and confused, with a malfunctioning ai system to help guide your path
2. You gain access to the various rooms in the ship, each giving hints to the eventual true ending
3. The ship deteriorates more based on what path you choose
4. In the end you must come to terms with what happened and survive to see the mission through

Audience

Audience

Young/ Young adult

- No sex/ excessive gore/ violence
 - Mood set by darkness and lighting and story progression
 - People interested in space, space exploration, stars
 - Looking for stress as the player struggles to survive in an ominous environment
-

Share + Feedback

Mom

-choose your own ending? Maybe add different endings based on player choices

-age rating? No sex/ dramatic violence, so could be friendlier to kids

-zero gravity areas where ship is malfunctioning

-different stories through ship logs reveal different endings

-like flashlight idea, different items

Other Friend

-plant life in space

-space station?

-ancient relic deep in space?

-in-depth character lore

-recurring characters and profile images for character development

-transcribed voice note- conversational dialogue

Conclusion

Voidbound: Signal Lost returns the survival genre to its most primal fear: not death, but insignificance. By adopting a 2D top-down perspective, the game transforms the USV Aethelgard into a drifting labyrinth, a mechanical ghost ship where the vastness of the cosmos is felt through the oppressive scale of empty corridors and the flickering isolation of a single flashlight beam.

Players are invited to roam this derelict monument to human ambition, piecing together a mystery that is never quite the same twice. It is a game about finding footprints in the dust and deciding whether to follow them or forge your own path into the dark. Ultimately, Voidbound is not about conquering space, but about the quiet determination to remain human; and to ensure that, even when adrift in the void, the signal is never truly lost.